

THE ARIZONA REPUBLICAN.

The Only Paper Between Galveston, Texas, and Los Angeles, California, that Publishes the Full Dispatches of the Associated Press.

VOL. I.

PHOENIX, WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 27, 1890.

NO. 101

TARIFF SCHEDULES.

The Senate Considering Them Carefully.

Sugar to be Considered Later On.

The House Gets Into Quite a Wrangle On Account of Members Not Voting.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—The memorandum offered yesterday by Mr. Aldrich fixing a time for the consideration and voting on the tariff bill was agreed to by unanimous consent. The conference report on the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill was then read.

The paragraph in regard to reservoir sites which reserves from entry all such sites, was made the subject of discussion by Messrs. Sanders, Allison and Reagan. After some debate the conference report was agreed to and the tariff bill was again taken up.

The next paragraph, putting a duty of three cents per pound on crude nickel, was stricken out on the recommendation of the Finance Committee.

The next paragraph, relating to watches was amended on the recommendation of the Finance Committee by making duties on all watches 25 per cent ad valorem.

The paragraph relating to zinc in blocks and pigs was amended on the recommendation of the Finance Committee by reducing the duty from 15 to 12 1/2 cents per pound.

The committee substitute for the paragraph as to metal manufacturers not specially provided for, was agreed to. The scheduled on "wood and manufactures" wood" having been reached, Mr. McPherson wished to offer a substitute for the whole schedule, but he reserved it until the committee amendments should be disposed of.

The paragraph relating to sawed boards, etc., was, on the recommendation of the committee, amended by reducing the duty from thirty-five per cent to ten per cent, and by adding the words, "imposing a duty of twenty per cent on veneers not especially provided for."

The next paragraph, "pickets and palings" was amended by reducing the penalty from 20 to 10 per cent, and the next paragraph by reducing the duty from 35 to 30 per cent per thousand.

Mr. Aldrich moved to amend the paragraph which puts the duty of 10 per cent on chain made of iron, and not made into finished articles, and inserting in lieu the words, "or rods, whether wrought or manufactured from rattans or reeds, and whether round, square, or any other shape." Agreed to.

The schedule relating to sugar having been reached, Mr. Aldrich said that the committee proposed to let that schedule be passed over informally for the present.

The schedule relating to tobacco, its manufacture, etc., is to be the first thing to come up tomorrow.

The bill was then taken up and the question being on the lead paragraph which Mr. Coke had offered, was amended so as to make lead extracted from silver ores free of duty and Mr. Plumb had offered reducing the duty on lead ore and lead from one and a half to three-quarters of a cent. Before proceeding with the paragraph, Mr. Plumb gave notice of his amendment to the bill which would offer at an appropriate time.

The amendment, as read, is with some few modifications of the bill, for a reciprocity with Canada as introduced by Mr. Bitterworth in the House. Mr. Plumb proposed to restrict the operation of a reciprocal arrangement to manufactured articles and minerals. Mr. Plumb then spoke in favor of his amendment.

Mr. Saunders opposed the two amendments. At the close of the discussion Mr. Plumb's amendment was to reduce the duty on lead ore from one and one-half cents to three-fourths of a cent per pound. Voted on and rejected.

Mr. Coke's amendment, making lead extracted from silver ore free of duty, was then voted on and also rejected. No other amendment was offered to the paragraph and none to the next two paragraphs. Lead in pigs, two cents per pound and lead in sheets two and one-half cents per pound.

The paragraph relating to metallic mineral substances in crude state, not specially provided for, having been reached, Mr. Blair spoke against the amendment reported by the Finance Committee, striking out the duty of thirty-five per cent on mica. It went over without action.

Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—After considerable debate as to what was the first business before the House this morning, Speaker Reed decided the question was the roll call on the passage of the Lard bill. Mr. Mason, of Illinois, appealed from the decision. On sustaining the decision the vote showed no quorum and a call of the House was ordered.

One hundred and fifty-nine members having responded, their names and nineteen of the members not having reported their presence to the clerk, the Speaker pro tem announced there was a quorum present.

Mr. Morgan moved an adjournment, saying he believed some agreement on the Lard bill could be reached. Motion lost.

Mr. Cannon then offered a resolution directing the Sergeant at Arms to notify absent members to return to Washington without delay and revoking all leaves of absence except those granted on account of illness. The resolution decided that twice today the legislative proceedings had been interrupted by want of a quorum; that certain members (naming their names) answered to their names under calls, but did not respond on regular roll calls. Messrs. Blount, Crain and others protested against the resolution, saying it was an unjust arraignment and every member mentioned in it

THE PACIFIC COAST.

The Authorities Stop a Prize Fight.

Brotherhood of Trainmen Have Grievances.

Hon. W. W. Morrow Declines the Nomination for Congress—Resignation Tendered.

Petaluma, Cal., August 26.—The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Association opened today under the most favorable auspices. Every inch of space in the large pavilion was taken, and the exhibit of all which are in place present a handsome and attractive appearance. The display of blooded and thoroughbred stock exceeds that of all previous years. There were three races down on the programme today, and the weather was all that could be desired; the attendance was very large.

The first race was for district two-year-olds; won by Anna Bell, Myrtle second, in two heats. Best time, 2:30 1/4.

Second race for 2:20 class, won by Havel Wilkes, Victor second. Best time, 2:21 1/4.

The last race was won by Sister V. in straight heats, Moses S. second. Best time 2:25.

PRIZE FIGHT STOPPED.

The Police Stop a Ring Contest in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—The first glove contest to take place in any of the athletic clubs since the death of McBrine in a contest at the Golden Gate Athletic club, June 8, came off at the California Athletic club last night, the participants being Billy Armstrong, of this city, and Mick McCarthy, of Australia. Armstrong was nearly knocked out in the fourteenth round when the police interfered and stopped the fight but made no arrests. There were no referees, time keepers or master of ceremonies, an electric gun regulating the movements of the men.

A BEAR STORY.

How a Plucky Hunter and His Faithful Dog Killed Him.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., August 26.—This afternoon F. M. Elin was brought to this city from the mountains badly wounded by an encounter with a grizzly bear. Bears have been killing Elin's sheep and he tried to hunt them.

He shot and slightly wounded one and it grabbed him and would have killed him but for the interference of his dog, which attracted the bear's attention and caused him to drop Elin, who grabbed his gun and killed the bear. Many deep cuts were made in his flesh by the bear's claws, but none of them are dangerous.

Another grievance committee. The grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Trainmen held a conference with the officials of the Southern Pacific Company today. Superintendent Fillmore notified the committee that the company would not treat with the Brotherhood of Trainmen, as it was not a representative of trainmen on the line. Arrangements were made for another conference when the representatives of the men on all the divisions can be present.

Wrestled For $500 a Side. SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—Evan Lewis and August McLeod wrestled at the Orpheum Theatre tonight for $500 a side. The condition of the contest was that Lewis should throw McLeod three times in one hour. He won the first fall in twenty-nine minutes, the second in four and the third in eleven, thus winning the match.

Declined the Nomination. SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—An evening paper says W. W. Morrow declines the nomination for Congress from the Fourth District. He gives as his reason that he cannot afford to live in Washington as his income from his profession has suffered, since most of his time has been devoted to Congressional duties.

Tendered His Resignation. SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—A. Caminetti, Secretary of the State Board of Trade today tendered his resignation, to take effect September 1. He will make a canvass of the Second Congressional District.

Valuable Residence Burned. SAN JOSE, Cal., August 26.—The residence of H. W. Edwards, of Oak Grove, eight miles south of San Jose, burned to the ground today. Loss, $18,000; insured for $8,000.

State Rate of Taxation. SACRAMENTO, August 26.—The State Board of Equalization has decided to fix the State rate of taxation at fifty-eight cents on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation.

Died From His Wounds. SAN RAFAEL, Cal., August 26.—Vicente Pengalino, who was dismembered by Antonio Lujan yesterday, died this morning. Lujan is still at large.

FARMERS' CONGRESS. They Convened at Council Bluffs and Pass Resolutions. COUNCIL BLUFFS, August 26.—The Tenth Annual Session of the National Farmers' Congress began today. Two hundred delegates, representing twenty-three States, had arrived when the convention for the Congress to open, and fifty more delegates are expected to arrive tomorrow, when thirty States will be represented.

The opera house, in which the convention is held, was packed to overflowing. Governor Boies

THE YAVI-SUPAIS.

A Tribe of Indians But Little Known.

Living in Yavapai County, Arizona.

But Few White Men Have Ever Visited this Strange Tribe—Their Canon Home.

[From the San Francisco Chronicle.] Col. W. H. Holabird, the well-known "boomer" of Claremont, Los Angeles county, is at the Palace Hotel, having just returned from an exploring expedition in the canon of the Colorado. He left Williams, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, with his guide, William Bass, a teamster, a photographer and two servants, and traveled through an almost wholly unexplored region. About 100 miles due north of Williams he found the Yavi-Supai tribe of Indians, living in exclusion in Cataract Canon, not far from the Grand Canon of the Colorado.

"I found there a strange race of red men," said Colonel Holabird to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter last evening. "I guess I was the fourth white man who ever visited their canon. They are a peaceable people, but avoid coming in contact with the whites. They are of the Apache family, but are evidently a very ancient people. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood, with fine physiques. I rounded up the settlement and counted just 247 of them, fully two-thirds being females. The valley in which their tribe have lived for many years in seclusion has two ways of approach. It contains perhaps 2000 acres, and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 400 feet high.

"We traveled for over fifteen miles along the canon and over the driest most lifeless country man ever set foot upon. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under a clump of cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts, which winds its way through the most luxuriant valley region I have ever visited. The water in the river is clear as a crystal, and being strongly impregnated with lime, petrifies everything it touches. There are three immense cataracts in the canon, built up during the past centuries by calcareous petrification. It looks as if centuries ago a huge cottonwood tree had fallen across the stream and lodged there. Mosses, ferns and creepers formed a barrier and all these in time turned to limestone.

"The grass caused the deposit to increase until the barrier extends 720 feet across the canon, making a fall 250 feet high. Intense solitude makes the falling of the water the only sound. Along the front of these high cataracts, limestone ridges, like laminae, have formed twenty to thirty feet, one above the other. Over all these the crystal water falls like a sheet of glass. Underneath, between the ridges, thousands of plants with flowers in full bloom are seen, while millions of humming birds dart in and out. It was like a fairyland, and I almost expected to see a sprite or elfin upon every leaf.

"The chief of the strange tribe living in this canon is an old man of 60 years named Captain Tom, a name given him by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who escaped from Utah and for six years lived in hiding with the red men. He was the first white man the Yavi-Supai had ever seen, and he taught the chief the white man's language and the use of firearms. The Indians live in small houses woven from young willow trees. They are a simple and harmless people, wholly unacquainted with civilization. The young men are experts with the bow and arrow, and can kill birds in the air and rabbits on the run with the greatest ease. The old chief met our party with two warriors as a bodyguard. They were decked up with their trappings, and looked fierce enough.

"I found these Indians in a starving condition, living upon cedar berries and grass seeds. As soon as I reached the canon I communicated with the Interior Department, asking for assistance for these Indians, and the reply from the Interior Department stated that the red men were a wandering people and could not ask the Government for assistance. I have since reported the case to General Miles, and he has promised to investigate the matter. The Indians are not a roving people but have lived in a canon for a century or more. General Miles informed me that he had heard of this strange race, but had never been able to secure a guide to the canon where they live.

"Dr. Samuel Dorchester, whom I met at Williams, A. T., has just concluded taking the Indian census of Arizona, which shows an Indian population in the Territory as follows: Navajos, 18,000; Papagos, Pimas and Maricopas, 9,000; San Carlos Apaches, 4,500; Mojaves, 2,200; Yavapis, 250; being a total of over 38,000 Indians in Arizona."

THEATRE IN RUINS. Caused by an Incendiary Fire That Killed One Fireman and Injured Others. CHICAGO, August 26.—McVickers Theatre, the pride of amusement-lovers in the West, is in ruins. The fire is undoubtedly incendiary. A man named LaPiere is employed as a watchman, and shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, so he states, he found a small fire blazing in the entrance-way between the lines of the dressing-rooms, back of and under the stage. He subdued the flames and called on his rounds. About 3 o'clock he discovered another blaze under the auditorium, where no one ever goes except the watchman. The flames spread with great rapidity and in spite of the efforts of the firemen the entire auditorium was gutted. The front of the building was occupied by offices and was saved by a fire wall, "Shenandoah," under the management of Al. Hayman, of San Francisco, was running at the theatre and tonight was to be his hundredth performance and souvenir night. All the costumes and properties were destroyed. Mr. Hayman

THE YAVI-SUPAIS.

A Tribe of Indians But Little Known.

Living in Yavapai County, Arizona.

But Few White Men Have Ever Visited this Strange Tribe—Their Canon Home.

[From the San Francisco Chronicle.] Col. W. H. Holabird, the well-known "boomer" of Claremont, Los Angeles county, is at the Palace Hotel, having just returned from an exploring expedition in the canon of the Colorado. He left Williams, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, with his guide, William Bass, a teamster, a photographer and two servants, and traveled through an almost wholly unexplored region. About 100 miles due north of Williams he found the Yavi-Supai tribe of Indians, living in exclusion in Cataract Canon, not far from the Grand Canon of the Colorado.

"I found there a strange race of red men," said Colonel Holabird to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter last evening. "I guess I was the fourth white man who ever visited their canon. They are a peaceable people, but avoid coming in contact with the whites. They are of the Apache family, but are evidently a very ancient people. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood, with fine physiques. I rounded up the settlement and counted just 247 of them, fully two-thirds being females. The valley in which their tribe have lived for many years in seclusion has two ways of approach. It contains perhaps 2000 acres, and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 400 feet high.

"We traveled for over fifteen miles along the canon and over the driest most lifeless country man ever set foot upon. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under a clump of cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts, which winds its way through the most luxuriant valley region I have ever visited. The water in the river is clear as a crystal, and being strongly impregnated with lime, petrifies everything it touches. There are three immense cataracts in the canon, built up during the past centuries by calcareous petrification. It looks as if centuries ago a huge cottonwood tree had fallen across the stream and lodged there. Mosses, ferns and creepers formed a barrier and all these in time turned to limestone.

"The grass caused the deposit to increase until the barrier extends 720 feet across the canon, making a fall 250 feet high. Intense solitude makes the falling of the water the only sound. Along the front of these high cataracts, limestone ridges, like laminae, have formed twenty to thirty feet, one above the other. Over all these the crystal water falls like a sheet of glass. Underneath, between the ridges, thousands of plants with flowers in full bloom are seen, while millions of humming birds dart in and out. It was like a fairyland, and I almost expected to see a sprite or elfin upon every leaf.

"The chief of the strange tribe living in this canon is an old man of 60 years named Captain Tom, a name given him by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who escaped from Utah and for six years lived in hiding with the red men. He was the first white man the Yavi-Supai had ever seen, and he taught the chief the white man's language and the use of firearms. The Indians live in small houses woven from young willow trees. They are a simple and harmless people, wholly unacquainted with civilization. The young men are experts with the bow and arrow, and can kill birds in the air and rabbits on the run with the greatest ease. The old chief met our party with two warriors as a bodyguard. They were decked up with their trappings, and looked fierce enough.

"I found these Indians in a starving condition, living upon cedar berries and grass seeds. As soon as I reached the canon I communicated with the Interior Department, asking for assistance for these Indians, and the reply from the Interior Department stated that the red men were a wandering people and could not ask the Government for assistance. I have since reported the case to General Miles, and he has promised to investigate the matter. The Indians are not a roving people but have lived in a canon for a century or more. General Miles informed me that he had heard of this strange race, but had never been able to secure a guide to the canon where they live.

"Dr. Samuel Dorchester, whom I met at Williams, A. T., has just concluded taking the Indian census of Arizona, which shows an Indian population in the Territory as follows: Navajos, 18,000; Papagos, Pimas and Maricopas, 9,000; San Carlos Apaches, 4,500; Mojaves, 2,200; Yavapis, 250; being a total of over 38,000 Indians in Arizona."

THEATRE IN RUINS. Caused by an Incendiary Fire That Killed One Fireman and Injured Others. CHICAGO, August 26.—McVickers Theatre, the pride of amusement-lovers in the West, is in ruins. The fire is undoubtedly incendiary. A man named LaPiere is employed as a watchman, and shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, so he states, he found a small fire blazing in the entrance-way between the lines of the dressing-rooms, back of and under the stage. He subdued the flames and called on his rounds. About 3 o'clock he discovered another blaze under the auditorium, where no one ever goes except the watchman. The flames spread with great rapidity and in spite of the efforts of the firemen the entire auditorium was gutted. The front of the building was occupied by offices and was saved by a fire wall, "Shenandoah," under the management of Al. Hayman, of San Francisco, was running at the theatre and tonight was to be his hundredth performance and souvenir night. All the costumes and properties were destroyed. Mr. Hayman

THE YAVI-SUPAIS.

A Tribe of Indians But Little Known.

Living in Yavapai County, Arizona.

But Few White Men Have Ever Visited this Strange Tribe—Their Canon Home.

[From the San Francisco Chronicle.] Col. W. H. Holabird, the well-known "boomer" of Claremont, Los Angeles county, is at the Palace Hotel, having just returned from an exploring expedition in the canon of the Colorado. He left Williams, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, with his guide, William Bass, a teamster, a photographer and two servants, and traveled through an almost wholly unexplored region. About 100 miles due north of Williams he found the Yavi-Supai tribe of Indians, living in exclusion in Cataract Canon, not far from the Grand Canon of the Colorado.

"I found there a strange race of red men," said Colonel Holabird to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter last evening. "I guess I was the fourth white man who ever visited their canon. They are a peaceable people, but avoid coming in contact with the whites. They are of the Apache family, but are evidently a very ancient people. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood, with fine physiques. I rounded up the settlement and counted just 247 of them, fully two-thirds being females. The valley in which their tribe have lived for many years in seclusion has two ways of approach. It contains perhaps 2000 acres, and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 400 feet high.

"We traveled for over fifteen miles along the canon and over the driest most lifeless country man ever set foot upon. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under a clump of cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts, which winds its way through the most luxuriant valley region I have ever visited. The water in the river is clear as a crystal, and being strongly impregnated with lime, petrifies everything it touches. There are three immense cataracts in the canon, built up during the past centuries by calcareous petrification. It looks as if centuries ago a huge cottonwood tree had fallen across the stream and lodged there. Mosses, ferns and creepers formed a barrier and all these in time turned to limestone.

"The grass caused the deposit to increase until the barrier extends 720 feet across the canon, making a fall 250 feet high. Intense solitude makes the falling of the water the only sound. Along the front of these high cataracts, limestone ridges, like laminae, have formed twenty to thirty feet, one above the other. Over all these the crystal water falls like a sheet of glass. Underneath, between the ridges, thousands of plants with flowers in full bloom are seen, while millions of humming birds dart in and out. It was like a fairyland, and I almost expected to see a sprite or elfin upon every leaf.

"The chief of the strange tribe living in this canon is an old man of 60 years named Captain Tom, a name given him by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who escaped from Utah and for six years lived in hiding with the red men. He was the first white man the Yavi-Supai had ever seen, and he taught the chief the white man's language and the use of firearms. The Indians live in small houses woven from young willow trees. They are a simple and harmless people, wholly unacquainted with civilization. The young men are experts with the bow and arrow, and can kill birds in the air and rabbits on the run with the greatest ease. The old chief met our party with two warriors as a bodyguard. They were decked up with their trappings, and looked fierce enough.

"I found these Indians in a starving condition, living upon cedar berries and grass seeds. As soon as I reached the canon I communicated with the Interior Department, asking for assistance for these Indians, and the reply from the Interior Department stated that the red men were a wandering people and could not ask the Government for assistance. I have since reported the case to General Miles, and he has promised to investigate the matter. The Indians are not a roving people but have lived in a canon for a century or more. General Miles informed me that he had heard of this strange race, but had never been able to secure a guide to the canon where they live.

"Dr. Samuel Dorchester, whom I met at Williams, A. T., has just concluded taking the Indian census of Arizona, which shows an Indian population in the Territory as follows: Navajos, 18,000; Papagos, Pimas and Maricopas, 9,000; San Carlos Apaches, 4,500; Mojaves, 2,200; Yavapis, 250; being a total of over 38,000 Indians in Arizona."

THEATRE IN RUINS. Caused by an Incendiary Fire That Killed One Fireman and Injured Others. CHICAGO, August 26.—McVickers Theatre, the pride of amusement-lovers in the West, is in ruins. The fire is undoubtedly incendiary. A man named LaPiere is employed as a watchman, and shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, so he states, he found a small fire blazing in the entrance-way between the lines of the dressing-rooms, back of and under the stage. He subdued the flames and called on his rounds. About 3 o'clock he discovered another blaze under the auditorium, where no one ever goes except the watchman. The flames spread with great rapidity and in spite of the efforts of the firemen the entire auditorium was gutted. The front of the building was occupied by offices and was saved by a fire wall, "Shenandoah," under the management of Al. Hayman, of San Francisco, was running at the theatre and tonight was to be his hundredth performance and souvenir night. All the costumes and properties were destroyed. Mr. Hayman

THE YAVI-SUPAIS.

A Tribe of Indians But Little Known.

Living in Yavapai County, Arizona.

But Few White Men Have Ever Visited this Strange Tribe—Their Canon Home.

[From the San Francisco Chronicle.] Col. W. H. Holabird, the well-known "boomer" of Claremont, Los Angeles county, is at the Palace Hotel, having just returned from an exploring expedition in the canon of the Colorado. He left Williams, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, with his guide, William Bass, a teamster, a photographer and two servants, and traveled through an almost wholly unexplored region. About 100 miles due north of Williams he found the Yavi-Supai tribe of Indians, living in exclusion in Cataract Canon, not far from the Grand Canon of the Colorado.

"I found there a strange race of red men," said Colonel Holabird to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter last evening. "I guess I was the fourth white man who ever visited their canon. They are a peaceable people, but avoid coming in contact with the whites. They are of the Apache family, but are evidently a very ancient people. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood, with fine physiques. I rounded up the settlement and counted just 247 of them, fully two-thirds being females. The valley in which their tribe have lived for many years in seclusion has two ways of approach. It contains perhaps 2000 acres, and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 400 feet high.

"We traveled for over fifteen miles along the canon and over the driest most lifeless country man ever set foot upon. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under a clump of cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts, which winds its way through the most luxuriant valley region I have ever visited. The water in the river is clear as a crystal, and being strongly impregnated with lime, petrifies everything it touches. There are three immense cataracts in the canon, built up during the past centuries by calcareous petrification. It looks as if centuries ago a huge cottonwood tree had fallen across the stream and lodged there. Mosses, ferns and creepers formed a barrier and all these in time turned to limestone.

"The grass caused the deposit to increase until the barrier extends 720 feet across the canon, making a fall 250 feet high. Intense solitude makes the falling of the water the only sound. Along the front of these high cataracts, limestone ridges, like laminae, have formed twenty to thirty feet, one above the other. Over all these the crystal water falls like a sheet of glass. Underneath, between the ridges, thousands of plants with flowers in full bloom are seen, while millions of humming birds dart in and out. It was like a fairyland, and I almost expected to see a sprite or elfin upon every leaf.

"The chief of the strange tribe living in this canon is an old man of 60 years named Captain Tom, a name given him by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who escaped from Utah and for six years lived in hiding with the red men. He was the first white man the Yavi-Supai had ever seen, and he taught the chief the white man's language and the use of firearms. The Indians live in small houses woven from young willow trees. They are a simple and harmless people, wholly unacquainted with civilization. The young men are experts with the bow and arrow, and can kill birds in the air and rabbits on the run with the greatest ease. The old chief met our party with two warriors as a bodyguard. They were decked up with their trappings, and looked fierce enough.

"I found these Indians in a starving condition, living upon cedar berries and grass seeds. As soon as I reached the canon I communicated with the Interior Department, asking for assistance for these Indians, and the reply from the Interior Department stated that the red men were a wandering people and could not ask the Government for assistance. I have since reported the case to General Miles, and he has promised to investigate the matter. The Indians are not a roving people but have lived in a canon for a century or more. General Miles informed me that he had heard of this strange race, but had never been able to secure a guide to the canon where they live.

"Dr. Samuel Dorchester, whom I met at Williams, A. T., has just concluded taking the Indian census of Arizona, which shows an Indian population in the Territory as follows: Navajos, 18,000; Papagos, Pimas and Maricopas, 9,000; San Carlos Apaches, 4,500; Mojaves, 2,200; Yavapis, 250; being a total of over 38,000 Indians in Arizona."

THEATRE IN RUINS. Caused by an Incendiary Fire That Killed One Fireman and Injured Others. CHICAGO, August 26.—McVickers Theatre, the pride of amusement-lovers in the West, is in ruins. The fire is undoubtedly incendiary. A man named LaPiere is employed as a watchman, and shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, so he states, he found a small fire blazing in the entrance-way between the lines of the dressing-rooms, back of and under the stage. He subdued the flames and called on his rounds. About 3 o'clock he discovered another blaze under the auditorium, where no one ever goes except the watchman. The flames spread with great rapidity and in spite of the efforts of the firemen the entire auditorium was gutted. The front of the building was occupied by offices and was saved by a fire wall, "Shenandoah," under the management of Al. Hayman, of San Francisco, was running at the theatre and tonight was to be his hundredth performance and souvenir night. All the costumes and properties were destroyed. Mr. Hayman

MARICOPA DEMOCRATS.

Hold Their County Convention Today.

Many Candidates in the Field for the Offices.

List of Delegates Elected to Attend the Convention—A Lively Time is Expected.

The Democratic County Convention of Maricopa county will convene in Phoenix today at 10 a. m., in the Court room at the County Court House. By the terms of the call the convention is for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various county offices and for the purpose of selecting fifteen delegates to represent Maricopa county in the Democratic Territorial Convention, to be held in Phoenix, September 15.

The following delegates were elected at the primaries held August 16, and are entitled to sit in the convention.

Phoenix—T. D. McGlasson, L. H. Chalmers, J. A. Lutzinger, Thomas King, B. F. Porter, N. M. Broadway, E. Irvine, D. L. Murray, J. G. Field, J. H. W. Jensen, J. M. Gibson, James Morrell, J. M. Shott, Wm. Lyall, A. J. Thoman, Barney S. Harnsen, W. J. Wilson, G. H. Rothrock, David Kile, J. B. Hawley, R. B. Dorris, Wm. Zent, A. E. Cobb, Fred Balz, M. E. Clanton, J. K. Burnett, Henry Garfias, Charles T. Walters, J. D. Reed, A. Barsante, Jas. McCarthy, Wm. Gilson.

Mesa—W. J. LeBaron, J. H. Pomeroy, Charles Lewis, Alexander Hunsaker, J. A. Stewart, George Passey, Noah Brumhall.

Highland—W. E. Pomeroy, Cartwright—William Smith, John Orme and Al. Smoot.

Sidney—M. E. Hurley, John Bend—W. H. Morgan, New River—Frank Alkire, Winifred—W. K. Brashear, Wickensburg—Henry Wickensburg, Cave Creek—Ed. Channell, W. B. Gil-lingham, A. J. Hoskins.

Jordan—H. L. Collins, Camp Creek—George Marlar, Peoria—O. L. Mahoney.

Tempe—Roon Lewis, A. R. Jenkins, George W. Nichols, L. H. Hawkins, Curt W. Miller, E. G. Goodwin, James Austin, J. E. Redden, Lon Harmon.

Lehi—Henry Rogers, H. J. Harper, D. P. Jones.

Orme—James Vessel, Samuel McElhenny, Henry Wilky, C. A. Slankard, East Buckeye—James Charlton, James Harlow.

Enterprise—B. W. Hall, James Bassett.

Agua Caliente—Charles Neahr and H. K. Wills, Wedgeworth and George W. Crane. The vote of this precinct was a tie on the two couples.

McDowell—James J. McCann, Verde—Perry Sear, Vulture—Eugene Angelman, Thomas E. Farish.

Lower Gila Bend—Jake Davenport, Arizona Falls—John R. Norton, Frog Tanks—Eugene S. Claiborne, Many of the above delegates are already here and their life is not a happy one. Candidates lie in wait for them on every corner. There are eighty-two votes in all and each office-seeker is desirous of receiving at least forty-two of them. Below are given the names of the most prominent candidates for the various offices.

Territorial Council—H. N. Alexander, W. T. Smith.

Territorial Assembly—C. Meyer Zwick, T. C. Jordan, H. B. Lighthizer, L. H. Hawkins, J. C. Goodwin, Jas. Marlar, Thomas E. Farish, L. H. Chalmers, Sheriff—Sam Webb, W. T. Gray, Ed. Seabrook, James K. Murphy.

District Attorney—Frank Cox, E. J. Edwards, H. C. Davis.

Treasurer—J. W. Crenshaw, A. J. Halbert, J. E. Walker, R. L. Rosson, J. J. Sweeney.

Recorder—Neri Osborn, P. H. Coyle, Probate Judge—Frank Baxter, Thos. G. Greenhaw.

Assessor—Henry Orme and Frank Crenshaw.